Descriptive Biography

Henry Farrell is the Stavros Niarchos Foundation Agora Professor of International Affairs at Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies. Previously, he was professor at George Washington University's Department of Political Science and Elliott School of International Affairs and SNF Agora Institute. He has also been a fellow at the Woodrow Wilson Center for International Scholars, Assistant and Associate Professor at George Washington University, Assistant Professor at the University of Toronto, and a senior research fellow at the Max-Planck Project Group in Bonn, Germany. He works on a variety of topics, including the relationship between democracy and information, the security consequences of international economic networks, and international political economy. He is the 2019 recipient of the Friedrich Schiedel Prize for Politics & Technology, a prize for "outstanding individuals who contribute to inter- and transdisciplinary projects linking politics and technology," awarded jointly by the Friedrich Schiedel Foundation and the Technical University of Munich.

His first book, The Political Economy of Trust: Interests, Institutions and Inter-Firm Cooperation, was published in 2008 by Cambridge University Press, and his second (with Abraham Newman), Of Privacy and Power: The Transatlantic Fight over Freedom and Security, was published in 2019 by Princeton University Press. It is the 2019 recipient of the Palmer Civil Liberties Prize, awarded by Chicago-Kent College of Law and the 2020 ISA-ICOMM Award. In addition he has authored or co-authored 34 academic articles for journals including International Organization, World Politics, Comparative Political Studies and International Security, as well as numerous book chapters for edited volumes.

Professor Farrell is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, co-leader of the Moral Economy of Technology initiative at Stanford University's Center for Advanced Studies in the Behavioral Sciences, a non-resident senior fellow and associated researcher at the Conservatoire National des Arts & Métiers Security and Defense Hub, a Foreign Correspondent for Stato e Mercato, co-chair of the Social Science Research Council's Digital Culture initiative, and an affiliated scholar at Stanford University Law School's Center for the Internet and Society. He is a co-founder of the popular academic blog Crooked Timber, and Editor in Chief of The Monkey Cage, which is currently hosted at the Washington Post and was winner of the 2010 The Week award for Best Blog. He has written articles for general publications including Foreign Affairs, The New York Times, The Financial Times, Foreign Policy, Harvard Business Review, The National Interest, The American Prospect, The Washington Monthly, The Boston Review, The American Interest, Democracy, New Scientist, The Nation, Aeon, The Chronicle of Higher Education, Times Higher Education, and the Australian Academic Supplement among others.
